Grottes de Remouchamps

The cave of Remouchamps has been visited by tourists since 1828. However, the resinous torches used by the first visitors at that time could only give a vague impression of what can be seen today thanks to the magnificent lighting now in place. The sense of mystery then far outweighed the view of the underground beauties...

But the most charming moment of the visit is the return by boat on the river running through the lower level of the cave. The traveler can enjoy there the longest underground boat ride in Belgium, and moreover the longest in the world accessible to tourists.

As one of the major attractions in Wallonia, the Coo Waterfall is the highest natural waterfall in Belgium. Just a few kilometers from Stavelot, the Amel River plunges from a height of 15 meters!

As early as 1483, the monks of the Abbey of Stavelot are said to have used the Amel for a mill. It is likely that the water sometimes flowed over the surrounding rocks...

In the early 19th century, the waterfall was part of the «Spa entertainment program.»

Even today, it remains the starting point for numerous tourist activities.

Abbaye de Stavelot

Located in the heart of the city, the Abbey, recognized as a major heritage of Wallonia and awarded «5 stars,» is a space for tourism and culture.

There you will find the museums: the Museum of the Francorchamps Circuit, the Guillaume Apollinaire Museum, and the Museum of the History of the Principality.

A few years after the French Revolution, the revolutionary troops reached the Principality of Stavelot-Malmedy and forced the monks to flee to Germany, taking their most precious possessions with them.

Afterwards, the buildings and the church were completely destroyed. Practically abandoned, they were sold in 1798 to two citizens of Stavelot, who considered the church as a useful quarry. It was dismantled and the stones were sold. Only the lower part of the entrance tower was preserved.

Chateau de Franchimont

The Castle of Franchimont in Theux, located in the heart of the Belgian Ardennes and an exceptional heritage of Wallonia, is definitely worth a visit.
